Thoughts from Pete...

After all the anticipation and excitement of Christmas, we now find ourselves in January. There can be a stark beauty in nature at this time of year, but I suspect that few would nominate this time of year as being a favourite. On the plus side, the nights are now beginning to shorten and the days to lengthen - if only by a couple of minutes with each passing day.

At Christmas, we hear of Jesus being described as the light of the world. Near the start of John's gospel we read, 'The true light that gives light to everyone was coming into the world.' Jason Swan Clarke, writing in Every Day with Jesus at the end of December, mentioned this verse and shared a few observations about this light.

- 1, Light doesn't simply illuminate - it inhabits.
- 2, The light of Christ doesn't remain distant - it steps into the dark, stands beside us and quietly says 'follow me'.
- 3, The true Light of heaven became human and moved into our neighbourhood. The maker became matter; the Creator dwells in creation. Every moment, every molecule, hums with his presence.
- 4, That same Light longs to be your compass this coming year. Not a glare that exposes your flaws, but a glow that guides your path. Not a spotlight of judgement, but a sunrise of mercy, turning even your failures into fields of grace. Christ doesn't simply show you the way - He is the way, lighting you from within.

Do you agree with Jason? Are these just nice words or do they resonate with you?

We are now in the season of Epiphany. A time when we are reminded that Jesus came to save all people. The circumstances of Jesus' birth had been a surprise but the realisation that he had been born for all, (and not just for those who had been waiting for his coming) was perhaps even more of a surprise. Pope Benedict XVI described Epiphany as being when the 'the light of Christ, which was contained in the Grotto of Bethlehem, reaches its full universal importance.'

Later in January, we celebrate the 'Week of Prayer for Christian Unity'. An opportunity for all Christian Churches to reaffirm that the differences between our different denominations (our histories, structures and practices) are insignificant compared with what unites us. That our differences shouldn't divide us but instead provide sufficient variety that there is a church where everyone can feel at home. Together we will continue to try to bring the light and warmth of Jesus' message to our town, villages and community. The Bridge Church in St Ives are kindly organising a special service at 7:30pm on Sunday 25th January, to which all are invited.

I hope that that 2026 will be a good year for all of us. May we each benefit from the light, warmth, comfort and reassurance of Jesus' love for us. In turn, find ourselves able to share this with others.

A Happy New Year to you from everyone as St Ives Free Church and Fenstanton United Reformed Church.
